

October, 19 2006

Humanities/Dali

HOM RESPONSE

In the chorus that talks about Greek history has a lot of imagination. ~~The Habit Of Mind that I can use for the chorus is connections.~~ I chose connections because what they say in the chorus ~~you can connect~~ to your imagination or you could connect to some one or some thing in real life. "Bright sun, bright ray, great light of lights, glorious, gleaming, eye of golden day, refulgent, radiant chariot of the sun." To me the way I could connect this quote to real life is, when you wake up and you see the bright sun shining threw your window and you get up and look out the and it looks like the sun is riding a chariot. Another HOM that I can use is alternatives because you could look at what the Greeks say in a different way. Ares, war-god gave to each, man, to each, each, a different death! Ares, Ares gave us victory!" To me the way you could look at this is that the Greeks really cared about the people that lived around them and they honor the people who win wars to save their country. So they could live another day. They also honor their Gods because to them they thought their Gods were the reasons why they live and the reason why they think Greece is so good.

make no sense.

General Statement

You wrote about the wrong chorus!

